

Tom Stuart

“Programming with Nothing”

Tom Stuart has lectured on optimising compilers at the University of Cambridge and written about technology for the Guardian. He co-organises the Ruby Manor conference and is a member of the London Ruby User Group and London Computation Club.

Tom’s book, “Understanding Computation”, was published by O’Reilly in 2013.

iPr0gram

Friday 14th Oct, 1pm, H308

@ipr0gram

